He hasn't worked a 40 hour week in over a year.

Last I heard he wasn't working 40 hour weeks and with the added challenges with Glenda, what will be the toll on him?

Betty, I suggest that you give Dave a larger role in fixing the issues in Solutions. When given the opportunity, I have never seen anyone more effective than Dave in dealing with kids. And, I don't think it is because he is my husband that I feel that way. ☺ Could he be given supervision of Clay or be lead unit manager or something so that he would have the authority to address what he is seeing? Someone needs to be down there giving consistent and workable directions and I know that you don't have the time.

I know that I am overstepping and I apologize, but I am concerned about the situation in Solutions and really think that unless we make some changes it will not be easy to change things.
