I wouldn't be too sure.... He is a good guy, but... he is also extremely black and white when it comes to work... if it is even remotely questionable... don't do it... period. If you have to stop and think about something... don't..... he has been pretty clear on that. It is actually something I really like, you don't see that often in this line of work.... I once got my butt chewed almost to the point of reminding me of military service because of the way I answered a question during one of our town halls... I answered it technically the same as a similar question in another part of the state, but he felt I didn't put the same amount of stress on certain parts of it and let me know about it..
